China's growing dependence on foreign oil and gas has become a major concern for the country's leadership. The government has been actively seeking to diversify its energy sources and reduce its reliance on foreign supplies. This has led to a significant increase in investment in the oil and gas sector, both domestically and internationally. The government has also been working to improve its energy efficiency and promote the use of renewable energy sources. These efforts are expected to help China reduce its dependence on foreign energy supplies and ensure a more secure and sustainable energy future.
